From these slender data, it is but a simple mathematical calculation in progression toward the first year in which the first pair of humane beings appeared on earth. Upon this hypothesis the year 5,000 B. C. brings us down to about 3,000,000 people. If we except,

In the state of Texas you could place each man, woman, and child 10 feet apart, giving each 4,900 square feet of land—room sufficient for house, attic, and vegetable garden.

Within the limits of these United States each living human being today would have 66,000 square feet, or they could be placed 255 miles apart. The next time you hear anybody talking "overpopulation" you can shut him up by telling him that you can pack the whole lot—1,500,000,000 people—in a box measuring 2,000 feet each way.

As numerous tracts of land in Utah and Idaho will be thrown open this spring to settlement under the Carey act, the following summary of the requirements in acquiring a homestead on such lands will be of interest to many:

If a person has exhausted his right to 160 acres in one state, he is not entitled to file on Carey land in another state:

Carey lands are assignable; another person may file on land if he holds proper power of attorney; A married woman may not file on Carey lands; Residence must be established.

Within six months after entryman is notified that water is available, and continue to reside upon said entry until approval is offered, which must be done within three years from notice that water is available.
